News Items

1. The Coin Show put out a new podcast in December – the first one in six months. The hosts apologized for the delay since they last put out a podcast, but life got in the way for them. The one host's wife had surgery and as soon as his life was getting back to normal after his wife's recovery, the other host lost his job. Now that their lives settled down a bit, they gave their listeners a Christmas present by releasing their podcast on December 24th. Most of the news items in this month's newsletter were taken from The Coin Show Episode 120.

Just five days after the House gave its approval, the Senate on Dec. 10 passed legislation seeking coins to commemorate the semicentennial. These coins are supposed to have unique edges, be curved in shape like the 2014-dated HOF Baseball coins, feature a common obverse design selected by competition, and share a reverse depiction of the visor and part of the helmet from the famous photo of Buzz Aldrin on the moon. According to the link in the story to <http://www.congress.gov/>, President Obama signed the bill into law on December 16, 2016.

Interesting Coin Facts

In 1916 the US Mint began producing all new designs for each of the silver coins being minted. The Winged Liberty Dime, also known as the Mercury Dime, replaced the Barber Dime, which was also still minted in 1916.

The Standing Liberty Quarter replaced the Barber Quarter, which also was still being minted in 1916, late in the year. In fact production only occurred late in December and only 52,000 were produced.

The Walking Liberty Half replaced the Barber Half. This was the only half produced in 1916. Two of these coins were designed by the same person, Adolph A. Weinman, the Dime and the Half Dollar.
