News Items

1. Gold coin proves 'fake' Roman emperor was real, bbc.com, November 24, 2022. An ancient gold coin proves that a third century Roman emperor written out of history as a fictional character really did exist, scientists say. The coin bearing the name of Sponsian and his portrait was found more than 300 years ago in Transylvania, once a far-flung outpost of the Roman empire. Believed to be a fake, it had been locked away in a museum cupboard. Now scientists say scratch marks visible under a microscope prove that it was in circulation 2,000 years ago.

2. First coins featuring King Charles's portrait go into circulation, news.sky.com, December 8, 2022. On the coin's reverse is a tribute to Her Majesty - a design that originally appeared on the 1953 Coronation Crown, struck to commemorate her coronation at Westminster Abbey. It includes the four quarters of the Royal Arms depicted within a shield. Between each shield is an emblem of the home nations: a rose, a thistle, a shamrock and a leek.

3. Harry Potter and the very special royal coin set: Collectable 50p pieces will be last to feature Queen Elizabeth II, dailymail.co.uk, December 4, 2022. Harry Potter themed coins featuring the Hogwarts Express have been launched by the Royal Mint. The collectable coin is also the final 50p piece to have Queen Elizabeth II's portrait appear on the obverse side.

4. Monday Morning Brief for Nov. 28, 2022: Grading service changes, coinworld.com, November 28, 2022. NGC's new service, NGCX, appears to be a test bed for how wedded the numismatic community is to the Sheldon scale. The "10-point" scale will be offered only for coins issued since 1982, and NGC has already lined up a network of dealers who will be offering "generic" coins like American Eagle bullion coins bearing the new grades. The new scale does not replace the old scale (yet, anyway) and seems directed at new collectors. Similar scales are used for grading comic books, videotapes and similar collectibles, so a collector base familiar with the current scales in those fields may be more comfortable buying coins where "10" is perfect than in purchasing an identical coin graded 70. If the new scale is popular enough, the old scale's days could be numbered.

5. CAC Grading Unveils its New Coin Holder, greysheet.com, November 18, 2022. An initial release about a month ago included a sample slab image that the company chose to modify. Today we see the first images of the slab and label design the company intends to use with their launch in early 2023.

6. More than 8,000 silver coins discovered in Scottish field, scotsman.com, November 22, 2022. The find was made at Dunscore near Dumfries and has been described as the biggest medieval coin hoard found in Scotland since the 19th century. The coins are primarily Edward I and Edward II pennies dating to the 13th and 14th centuries when the Wars of Independence between the kingdoms of Scotland and England raged. Following excavation of the site, the huge task of recording each coin is now underway at Treasure Trove Unit, where a panel decides whether newly discovered ancient objects in Scotland are claimed by the Crown. A spokesman for the Treasure Trove Unit said around 8,400 medieval silver coins made up the Dunscore Hoard.

7. PCGS Grades Ultra-Rare 1863 $20 Gold Certificate, pcgs.com, November 21, 2022. Professional Coin Grading Service (www.PCGS.com) recently graded one of the rarest and most important banknotes in United States history. The note, a Civil War-era 1863 $20 Gold Certificate, was submitted by Stack's Bowers Galleries for grading through PCGS Banknote. "We are always excited to see notes of this caliber be submitted for grading," said PCGS President Stephanie Sabin. "It's among the most important notes out there to have come through our offices since our banknote grading team began accepting submissions in 2020. Some of the other iconic notes we have graded include the famous 1890 $1,000 Treasury Note Grand Watermelon bill and an original 100-note pack of Series 1934 $500 Federal Reserve Notes."
